

Pietro Lió

Institution: University of Cambridge

Country: United Kingdom

Email: pl219@cam.ac.uk

Pietro Lió is a Senior Lecturer at the Computer Laboratory that is the dept of Computer Science of the University of Cambridge. He has an interdisciplinary approach to research and teaching due to the fact that he has obtained a PhD in Complex Systems and Non Linear Dynamics (School of Informatics, dept of Engineering of the University of Firenze, Italy) and a PhD in (Theoretical) Genetics (University of Pavia, Italy).

His affiliations also includes the Cambridge Computational Biology Institute; Cambridge Neuroscience, the Cambridge Infectious disease Centre.

He teaches Bioinformatics and Systems Biology courses in the Computer Laboratory, in the dept of Mathematics and in the dept of Biochemistry of the University of Cambridge.

He is author of more than 230 peer reviewed papers and has edited several books. He has given more than 20 keynote talks.