Antonella Bonfà is the responsible for guidance in higher education at University of Genova and PhD student in Evaluation of Research and of Educational Systems and Processes. Her main activities and responsibilities involve coordination, organization and implementation of guidance activities especially for what concerns students' transition from high school to university. She is member of the Guidance Committee of University of Genova and member of the Subcommittee IRIS (Interfaculty Students' Performance Indicator). Before working at University she was a teacher in high schools where she worked also in the field of career guidance.

She collaborates constantly with local authorities such as Regione Liguria and Provincia di Genova in the field of career guidance. She collaborates also with ISFOL (Istituto per lo sviluppo della formazione professionale dei lavoratori) in order to manage and organize the International Forum on Guidance taking place in Genova annually. In 2009, 2010, 2011 and 2012 she was a member of the Scientific Committee of the International Forum on Guidance.

Antonella Bonfà planned and managed several projects at University of Genova, even ministerial on the area of evaluation of guidance actions.

She published some articles on university guidance and she participated at some national and international conferences about evaluation, education and career guidance.
