Caridad González Arroyo is an expert in communication who has been developing her career in the education and culture fields.

She has a Bachelor's Degree in Communication Sciences from the Universidad Autónoma of Barcelona (2000) and a Master in International Promotion of Foreign Trade from ESIC Business & Marketing School (2009). She also has a wide complementary training in project management, learning processes and ICT.

Caridad González Arroyo has been working in cultural institutions and education centres related to teaching foreign languages, Associated Centres to Instituto Cervantes, for over ten years. She is also working as a consultant in communication and promotion for cultural industries and tourism. Her expertise in communication and on-line community management as well as her great enthusiasm in new communication vehicles between teacher and student led her to develop innovative projects about collaborative language learning using Internet and On-line Social Networks. Her aim is that these projects are really useful for teachers and professors so her dream of a better world with no limits will be a bit closer.
