Elisabetta Magni is Full Professor of Linguistics in the Faculty of Foreign Languages and Literature at the University of Bologna, where she teaches courses in General Linguistics and Historical Linguistics. She is President of the Degree Course in Asian Languages, Markets and Cultures.

A specialist in Classical Languages, she has written widely on diachronic and synchronic issues in morphology and morpho-syntax of Greek, Latin and Romance Languages. She has been involved in research projects on the typology of Mediterranean Languages and on typological change in the morpho-syntax of Indo-European Languages. At present, she is coordinator for the methodology in the E-LOCAL Project (www.e-localproject.eu).

She has published in national and international journals, has contributed book chapters, co-edited and co-authored books and monographic publications, and also organized various meetings and congresses.
