Alexandra Berndt is the Director of Studies at digital publishing srl in Pavia, Italy. She graduated in German Literature, Journalism and Psychology from the University of Bamberg (Germany) in 1998. She attained an International Masters in "Media Science and Technology" from Pavia (Italy) in 1999 and is currently studying for an MA in "Educational Media" at the University of Duisburg-Essen (Germany). She worked as a Foreign Licensing Manager at De Agostini Multimedia (Milan, Italy) and since 2002 she has been teaching German as a Foreign Language at the University of Pavia (Italy). Alexandra Berndt started her collaboration with digital publishing srl in 2007 as an expert in didactic programming of Blended Learning Online Solutions. So far, as Director of Studies, she has been involved in several of their Blended Learning projects, coordinating a team of external trainers and authors in the development of new didactic content, holding specific workshops and innovative language studying programs. Regarding her research activities, Alexandra Berndt is currently focused on Collaborative Online Learning, in order to understand which collaborative learning scenarios, within the context of corporate foreign-language training, are best suited to significantly increase learning progress and engender a motivating influence on the learning process itself.
