Andrea Gobbi holds a degree in Italian Language and Culture with accent on Second Language Acquisition and Linguistics from University for Foreigners of Perugia, Italy.

For the same university he participated in Project APRIL, investigating how to support informal dynamics in second language learning through Web 2.0 tools and technologies. His main research interest is the development of tools and infrastructures on which to base peer to peer language learning.

He created and developed Tweetalitano, a twitter-based community of reference for Italian language connecting speakers and learners for contextual and on-demand language support.

He enjoys languages and currently speaks Italian, English, French, Spanish, and Japanese.
