Laura Nitu is an art teacher who works as a support worker for Ashlong Domiciliary Care, coordinates an Art Club for learning disabilities people at her work place and an Art Club for primary school pupils at Stuart Road Primary School in Plymouth, United Kingdom.

She graduated the National Art University of Bucharest with a degree in Textile Design in 2003 and obtained a PhD from the Oil and Gas University of Ploiesti, Romania, in Educational Management, in 2011. She has been teaching Art at all levels of education and she is an artist herself with 10 years of experience in children books illustration. Since 2009 she has been involved in the project "Scribbles in a drawer", an extracurricular activity at Art High School "Carmen Sylva" Ploiesti, Romania.

The participation in the 6th ICT and Language Learning Conference, 2013, documents the importance of ITC as language learning in the implementation of a new curriculum for art teachers initiated by a research into the Romanian art students' results.

Laura Nitu has published two articles on art educational topics - the master-disciple relationship and a new curriculum development for art. She is today, an online coach for the members of the Design Club "Scribbles in a drawer".
