Dr.ssa Elisa Cavicchiolo is a Ph.D Student in Sociology and Applied Social Science at the University of Rome “La Sapienza” and she is graduated in Statistics and Demography.

Dr.ssa Elisa Cavicchiolo is member of the Directive Board of Reflective Learning Italy an association that promotes the diffusion of a reflective learning culture in workplaces.

Dr.ssa Elisa Cavicchiolo is working on organizational dynamics, professions, public politics and in the field of learning and training through the application of principles of reflective practice framework.

Dr.ssa Elisa Cavicchiolo is member of the task force of LLP Comenius funded project “Learn to teach by social web” (L2T), which tries to make the added pedagogical value of social media usable for classroom teaching. Within this project, social media are not regarded as a technology, but as a social innovation – a new way of communicating, learning and cooperating. This new paradigm will strongly influence the way that today’s students will work in their working life. The project L2T will provide teachers with a curriculum that empowers them to use social media as a social innovation in a safe, reflected and useful way.
