Alexandra Christine Green is the Academic Development Manager at EUROGNOSI SA, a freelance author of EFL materials and an oral examiner.

She completed her BA Joint Honours degree in French and Italian, with German as a subsidiary at the University of Reading, UK and she went on to study for her MA at the University of Greenwich, UK. Alexandra worked as a teacher of modern foreign languages in the UK and in Greece, in various colleges and institutions, before joining the EUROGNOSI group of language schools in 2008 as the academic development manager.

In her current position, she is primarily responsible for the selection and evaluation of teachers, teacher training and development, conducting classroom observations and she is involved in researching and evaluating new technologies in the foreign language classroom. A large part of her job concerns presenting at seminars around Greece, Cyprus and Romania, both in person and in a virtual context, pertinent to methodology, teaching methods and strategies. She is also responsible for creating lesson plans for classroom, blended and online learning.

Alexandra Christine Green is the author of a series of skills books for students and teachers; Skills Booster series 1-4, for the preparation of the Cambridge YLE examinations (New Editions ELT) and World Wonders grammar series 1-4 (Heinle and National Geographic ELT).

She is also an oral examiner for the University of Cambridge ESOL and the University of Michigan and the editor of a monthly newsletter, the Teachers' Network, which focuses on methodology and the implementation of new technologies in the foreign language classroom.
