Roxana Bârlea, PhD Associate professor, teaches French and business communication at the Bucharest Academy of Economic Studies. She studied in Switzerland, France and Luxemburg.

36 years old, her professional activity encompasses 12 years in 11 countries on 4 continents; over 50 publications (articles, studies and books), over 30 participations in conferences and 9 research projects, one of which she is currently directing. In 2007 she delivered a course on methodology of teaching French on specific purposes at the University of Castilla-La Mancha, Spain.

Her current duties also involve collaborations with multinational companies in Bucharest, where she teaches professional communication in French and Romanian as foreign languages.

She is part of a number of evaluation and organization commissions and of the scientific board of the DICE journal, published by the Museum of the Romanian Literature.

Fascinated by linguistic and cultural diversity, for Roxana Bârlea teaching is a passion much more than a mere profession.

Domains of competence: methodology of teaching foreign languages; comparative linguistics; professional communication.
