Tord Talmo is an Assistant Professor at Sør-Trøndelag University College.

He graduated as MSc in Nordistics at the University in Trondheim (NTNU) in 2004. MSC. Talmo has been teaching in the subjects Norwegian and Technology and Science at HiST since 2003.

Since 2009 Talmo has been involved in several R&D projects at HiST, both regional and European. These involve European Union co-funded projects where HiST has been coordinators, like Do-It and Done-It, as well as several others. Most of these projects aim at utilizing handheld devices in the lectures, as a classroom tool.

Currently Talmo is coordinating a Comenius project named iLike, where the target is to improve the teaching of English as a foreign language, especially focused on grammar. Talmo is also involved in a strategic research area at HiST, HiSTMobile.

During the last three years Talmo has published more than 15 articles, and attended several European conferences presenting HiST's work in the EU co-funded projects.

Talmo's main research interests involve mobile learning, language training and new learning environments.
