Dr. Darren Hanson is a Senior Lecturer in the Policy & Leadership Studies Academic Group of Singapore's teaching university, the National Institute of Education (NIE) within Nanyang Technological University (NTU).

Darren teaches a range of leadership subjects to NIE Masters students, along with subjects on policy and society to student teachers. He is currently undertaking a global study of leadership capabilities among school principals and heads of department.

Prior to joining NIE, Darren taught leadership and management subjects at business schools in Singapore, Europe and Australia. He continues to maintain a research interest in leadership in business, and has studies underway exploring leadership among IT leaders and distributed work teams.

Darren is a frequent speaker on the subject of leadership at international conferences, and last year was a key note speaker at a global education research conference in India.
