Mladen Domazet is research associate at the Institute for Social Research – Zagreb, Centre for Educational Research and Development.

He graduated in Physics and Philosophy from University of Oxford, and gained a PhD in philosophy of science from University of Zagreb. He has been employed at the Institute since 2003 on research projects in education.

Mladen specialises in philosophical aspects of explanation in science, education and sustainability thinking.

Since 2010 he has joined a team clustered round Network of Education Policy Centers, an international educational CSO network, to form ENjoinED network of regional environmental and educational CSOs. The ENjoinED network aims to map existing state of play in educational for sustainability across the participating countries and pool know-how across different organisations in furthering education for sustainable development.
