Fatemeh Dorri is now a faculty member of Payame-noor university, Iran.

She has an M.Sc. in Mathematical Logic, graduated from Tarbiat Modarres University, Tehran, Iran, in 2007.

Fatemeh Dorri has been working for Payame-noor university as a faculty member in Department of Mathematics, since Feb. 2008. Originally this university was founded for distant education in Iran, about 25 years ago. Now Payame-noor has the largest number of students among universities all over the country. Most of these students are the medium students graduated from high schools in Iran. So there's a good opportunity for a trainer at Payame-noor to see what problems in high school educational system occur that affects the mathematical skills of university students.

Fatemeh Dorri has presented papers at mathematical and educational conferences in Iran since 2007. She is going to start a Ph.D. in mathematics education soon.
