Elisa Di Luca is the director of Disability Support Service of the University of Padova. She coordinates all the supports to students with disabilities enrolled and promotes activities and projects for the inclusion of people with disability in higher education.

She graduated in Oriental Languages – Japanese at the University of Venice in 1995, in 2002 specialized in Assistive Technologies at the University of Trieste and in 2008 completed a Master Degree in Psycho-pedagogy of Disabilities at the University of Pisa.

Since 1996 she has been working at the University of Padova; for three years as an International Mobility Officer mainly in charge of Erasmus mobility programme and since 2001 moved to Disability Support Service transferring the know-how achieved in the disability area and becoming an expert of international mobility of students with disabilities internationally too.

She has been involved as project manager and coordinator of Italian and European projects focusing on the areas of disability and education. She promoted and coordinated the project “Le lingue accessibili” at University of Padova funded by MIUR as an innovative project within the actions for the implementation of Italian Law 17/99.

She often takes part to National and International Conferences as a speaker and is part of several Commissions and projects within University, in the regional area and at national level.
