Juana María Ortega-Tudela is associate Professor in the School of Education at the University of Jaén.

Her graduate degree is from University of Jaén in Psychopedagogy (Ph.D) in 2003. Since then she has been working in the fields of Special Education, New Technologies applied to education and Initial Teacher Training.

In addition, she is the provincial coordinator for the Grupo Comunicar. This is an international association on education and the media, an open forum for knowing and understanding the new media languages. Today, it is an established platform of expression open to the participation and collaboration of all those professionals in education and the media interested in this crossover area of "Education and the Media".

She is involved in different projects funded by the Spanish and Andalusia Government concerning several topics about education.
